Important dates

RMIT Vietnam delivers its courses in trimesters. Dates are published annually on the university's website. Application deadlines are also provided at www.rmit.edu.vn

Eligibility

To be eligible for a Study Abroad/ Exchange program with RMIT Vietnam, you must have:

- » Completed at least one full year of studies with you 'home' institution.
- » Achieved a minimum GPA of 2.5 or 60% or equivalent in your studies to date
- » Met RMIT's English language requirements (For details please check our website: www.rmit.edu.vn)
- » Be 18 years of age or over, at the time of your application.

Important notes

- » Once your application has been received, if all is correct and you are eligible, your study plan will be forwarded to the relevant academics at RMIT for planning purposes.

Should you need to select a unique program of study; a list of preapproved courses will be sent to you with your Letter of Offer. While you will have been preapproved for these courses your formal enrolment will take place after you arrive at RMIT.

Please note that in the unforeseen situation that a selected course is not running, the university will notify you of the change to your program so an alternative choice can be made. After arrival, if you wish to select new courses, this will have to be assessed by the RMIT Vietnam Registrar. You will need to produce your academic transcripts or other documentation to support your change. You will be required to negotiate any credits associated with the changes with your home institution, if required.

- » The Study Abroad Orientation is compulsory. You must schedule your flights to be on time to attend this important program so that you are provided with the information, cultural insights and basics needed to enjoy your time in Vietnam and with RMIT University.

Orientation is run before the commencement of your first semester at RMIT Vietnam. Exact program dates will be sent with your Letter of Offer to RMIT University Vietnam.

Health insurance

You will be required to have full health insurance cover for the duration of your stay in Vietnam. This is included in the program costs. Additional cover may also be required from your home institution.
